St. Patrick Cemetery, Kent, WA
ST. PATRICK CATHOLIC CEMETERY

Saint Patrick, the Patron Saint of Ireland, was an obvious name chosen for the cemetery, where one can read from the tombstone inscriptions, the names of Mullen, Costello and O'Grady, and the places of Tipperary, Donegal and Galway. Mr. Richard O'Connell, an immigrant from Limerick, Ireland, donated the land for the cemetery. The earliest burials appear to be that of Morgan O'Brien and his wife, Catherine, who both died in 1880 according to the tombstone inscription.

The Catholics who lived near the cemetery were served by two churches. The St. Bernard Church at White River, now known as O'Brien,* existed from August 20, 1876 until about 1924. Nearby Kent celebrated their first Mass in Redmen's Hall in 1899. The first St. Anthony Church was built in 1904 and replaced by the present church, dedicated on February 22, 1925. This beautiful English-Gothic style church at 310 South Third Street in Kent continues to serve the needs of the community.

The Death Register of St. Anthony Church, in two volumes, contains an additional three loose sheets entitled: "White River, Kent and Auburn Funerals" and dates from 1906 - 1917. The only names copied from those pages for this book were those buried in the White River Cemetery or have tombstones located in the St. Patrick Cemetery. Since those buried at the White River Cemetery now have tombstones located in the St. Patrick Cemetery, we are assuming it is the same cemetery. The Death Register of St. Anthony Church dates from 1918 to the cut-off date of April 30, 1981. Again, the only names copied from the "Death Register" were those interred at St. Patrick Cemetery.

The St. Patrick Catholic Cemetery is located at South 204th Street and Orillia Road South (51st Place South) on Kent's west hill, overlooking the Boeing Space Center. In the 1960s Mr. Ed L. Reitan and his son, Eric, performed the difficult task of platting the cemetery without the use of a previous plot map and burials dating back to the 1880s. The cemetery has 4.60 acres, consists of 281 plots with twelve burials to a plot, and space for many more burials.

* Note: The area of O'Brien has a Kent mailing address now, however, not within the city limits of Kent, but in King County, Washington.
THE 1960 ST. PATRICK CEMETERY TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS

On file at the Seattle Public Library is a nine page tombstone inscription list entitled: "St. Patricks Cemetery, O'Brien, Wash. (near Kent)." Copied October 2, 1960. The author(s) is not given.

The following tombstone inscriptions are taken from the "1960 List", but were not found or legible after several cemetery recording sessions recently.
